Un pays intérieur: visions du Brésil dans l'univers de Clarice Lispector

APPLICATION FORM

L'oeuvre de Clarice Lispector est connue surtout par ses aspects intimistes et inquiétants à tel point qu'on n'y reconnaît pas immédiatement la critique sociale qui est pourtant présente dans beaucoup de ses écrits. Complètement insérée dans la culture brésilienne, cette oeuvre se construit à l'aide de personnages ordinaires pris souvent dans le tourbillon des idées de narrateurs assez percutants. Pour ce cours, on propose la lecture surtout des textes écrits dans la dernière année de vie de Lispector, à savoir, le roman L'Heure de l'étoile et les deux derniers contes du recueil La Belle et la Bête, mais d'autres oeuvres de l'auteure seront également traitées pour en découvrir une vision personnelle du Brésil.

La société brésilienne à travers ses films (1960-2020)

APPLICATION FORM

Ce cours de mobilité virtuelle entend proposer un regard sociologique sur la société brésilienne, au prisme de sa production cinématographique. Six films seront abordés au fil du cours, chacun choisi comme expression d'une décennie spécifique de l'histoire du pays, des années soixante à nos jours.

Chacun des six modules sera introduit par des capsules vidéo abordant certains aspects significatifs du film de la semaine, proposant ainsi un dialogue avec les sciences sociales à destination d'un public francophone.

Sur cette base, les participants auront alors à proposer un set de questions/réflexions qui viendra préparer une rencontre synchrone hebdomadaire où les films seront débattus à la lueur des contributions de toutes et tous.

France et Brésil “en diptyque”: Alberto Cavalcanti fait du cinéma

APPLICATION FORM

Ces séminaires ont pour objet une approche historique du cinéma mondial, notamment du cinéma brésilien, à partir des réalisations d'Alberto Cavalcanti (Rio, 1897- Paris, 1982). Au cours des années 1950, Cavalcanti se consacre à un projet personnel - l'une des contributions, peut-être la plus intrigante et la plus complexe du cinéma brésilien, mettant en dialogue et en exergue la culture française et la culture brésilienne dans Le Chant de la mer (O Canto do Mar, 1954), un diptyque avec En rade (1927), qui lui remonte à l'avant-garde française des années 1920, période de l'origine des symphonies de métropoles. D'où l'intérêt de revenir aux sources de cette réalisation, fruit encore d'innombrables débats à l'égard du Cinema Novo et, d'ailleurs, très productifs à l'heure actuelle.

Beats from Brazil: Brazilian Music and Culture and its Implications for the National Identity

APPLICATION FORM

The course "Beats from Brazil: Brazilian Music and Culture and its implications for the National Identity" aims to give a brief outline about Brazilian Music from the early to the late 20th Century, which represents most of the contributions to the construction of Brazilian Local, Regional and National Culture. From this macro idea, the objectives of this course lay on the possibilities to depict a cultural diversity in Brazilian culture through its music and artistic occurrences, connected to political events and the assimilation of foreign elements belonging to the people who emigrated to Brazil, added to the local color, sound and features. Thus, the idea is to provide some of the main events in Brazilian music, going from North to South, and ranging from Folklore (Forró, Samba and typical regional sounds) to pop songs, such as MPB, rock and Brazilian pop music (including Brazilian Funk music and Rap). Hopefully this course will problematize some of the stereotypes towards Brazilian Culture, since most of the musical movements are not known to by a large number of individuals.

Biology and behavior of vectors transmitting tropical diseases in Brazil

APPLICATION FORM

The study of the biological behavior of vectors that transmit tropical diseases in Brazil, such as Chagas' disease, Leishmaniasis and malaria, in addition to other infestations such as pedicles, scabies and fleas that can also play an important role as carriers of several diseases and diseases, have a great relevance to their understanding and the consequent reduction of their incidences. Based on that, this course aims to present and clarify the nuances of these behaviors, as well as to present alternatives for combating and preventing these diseases, which still today affect a significant number of people across the country.

Brazilian food (tasted) by nuclear magnetic resonance

APPLICATION FORM

Brazil is one of the leading food producers in the world. The food products vary from coffee, fruits, soya bean, animal proteins, vegetables, just to cite a few examples. Facing the global growing demand of food and its derivatives, it is mandatory to have more efficient ways to analyse different food features concerning quality, taste, origin, and even aspects from planting to harvest. Nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) is a versatile technique as it provides way to analyse at micro and macroscopic stand points the main features of foods and its derivatives in a non- destructive fashion. This short course will present the nuts and bolts of NMR spectroscopy and relaxometry and its applications in Brazilian food systems.

Multidisciplinary aspects of Brazilian biodiversity

APPLICATION FORM

Considering that Brazil is one of the megadiverse countries in the world, concentrating in its territory a large number of species of plants and animals, the study of its biodiversity is imperative for the sustainable use of its flora and fauna. In this way, the present course intends to give a wide view on several aspects of Brazilian biodiversity, including the study of biomes with their native species, ethnopharmacological use of plants and fungi with medicinal properties, the study of molecules with pharmaceutical applications, extracted from natural matrices as well as new tools for metabolomic approaches to the study of these natural sources.

APPLICATION FORM

This course is an update on the state of the art of fish nutrition with emphasis on the main native fish species farmed in Brazil. The course will include a contextualization on the economic importance of the species, a short introduction to each nutritional component and the differences between the main farmed fish and the native species included in this course. Finally, we will discuss the main challenges for developing nutritionally sound, cost-effective diets for these species. This course is intended for biologists and animal scientists who have basic knowledge of nutrition.

Formation économique e sociale de l'Amazonie brésilienne

APPLICATION FORM

Le cours vise à fournir une perception générale et critique sur la formation historique, économique, sociale et culturelle de l'Amazonie brésilienne. Partant du concept de formation économique-sociale, nous aborderons les macro processus qui ont façonné l'expérience sociale des populations amazoniennes: les modèles et projets économiques, de développement et d'occupation du territoire, les continuités et discontinuités des expériences historiques, les contradictions et les négociations interculturelles et intersectionnelles. Nous chercherons également à situer le conflit cyclique entre les savoirs locaux et l'insertion de l'Amazonie dans la société mondialisée, en s'intéressant aux mécanismes de colonisation, de décolonialité et d'auto-colonialité présents dans la région. Cours de synthèse, sa genèse est dans la perception des grands mouvements de structure et d'anti-structure qui façonnent l'histoire amazonienne.

Regional integration studies in South America: the Amazon case-study

APPLICATION FORM

Regional integration helps countries overcome divisions and work towards cooperation. The European experience offers different models for regional integration studies and therefore, it is essential to understand its aspects in International Relations studies. However, countries may have different preferences on regional integration, depending on their regional realities. This module aims to engage grand theories of integration, both classical and its critics, applying them to the South America region and its Amazonian area integration process. We will discuss to what extent these theories travel beyond Europe and could or couldn't be applied here. For this purpose, the module provides a discussion of some of the key theoretical concepts of Regional Integration applying them to the Amazon region.

Border studies and security in South America: the Amazon case-study

APPLICATION FORM

Day after day the concept of borders has become crucial to understand the manifold aspects of International Relations (IR) and its corollaries to our day-to-day life. Thus, this module aims to discuss the concept of borders, from theoretical to a practical view, in the Northern border of Brazil, regarding its impact over the international/regional security. For this purpose, the module provides an introduction to some of the key theoretical and methodological issues involved in the study of Borders, International Relations, Security on the Amazon region. In addition to reflecting on the nature of its challenges and prospects towards a contemporary and globalized world.

Introduction to Urban Modernization in Brazil (1880-1930)

APPLICATION FORM

Between 1880 and 1930 Brazil experienced many changes, marked by the end of slavery and the monarchy, the Republican regime, social upheavals, a swelling immigration, new technologies. All these movements coalesced in a changing urban environment, which became a showcase and a battleground for the different ideals of modernity and national identity blossoming during this period. This course will provide an introductory overview of some of these questions, by approaching the way modernity was intertwined with slavery during the 19th century; what life and work after slavery said about citizenship and exclusion; examples of urban reforms aimed at building a civilized environment; the social uses of technology; the concept of progress, its implementation, contradictions, and shortcomings in turn-of-the-century Brazilian society.

Inequalities in Brazil: An Interdisciplinary Introduction

APPLICATION FORM

The course presents a general introduction to the theme of inequalities in Brazil from an interdisciplinary perspective. Historians, geographers, political scientists, anthropologists and sociologists have joined forces to offer an overview of the ecological, political, and economic foundations that have produced one of the most unequal countries in the world. From the country's slave foundations to its contemporary social policies, from its federative compact to the financial action of the Brazilian superelites, the course addresses the main tenets of a representative and participatory political system that, if on the one hand is among the oldest in the world, on the other hand places Brazil in the world frontier of inequalities in the 21st century.

Designs of the oppressed

APPLICATION FORM

This course shares the accumulated experience of the Design & Oppression network, weaved by educators and professionals who refuse to take part in reproducing the oppressions studied by Paulo Freire in Pedagogy of the Oppressed (1972) and Augusto Boal in Theater of the Oppressed (2000). The course will begin by summarizing the colonial history of design in Brazil, discuss other forms of oppression, and finish by availing the possibilities of designing for liberation. Guest lectures and conversations held by the network members will represent the variety of situations in which designers face oppression in Brazil. Beyond describing how the social issue manifests in Brazil from multiple perspectives, the lectures will show that Brazilians also have advanced pedagogies, theories, and practices to deal with that.

Brazilian Digital Cultures: understanding diversity, internet and society in Brazil

APPLICATION FORM

This course reflects on the diversity of digital cultures in Brazil from two perspectives. First, the internet and its impacts on Brazilian society are contextualized in the economic, sociocultural and political realms. Then, social media, apps, algorithms and online platforms are analyzed based on their appropriation and uses, as well as on the imaginary and practices of social agents. Throughout the course, students are encouraged to understand the socially constructed character of the internet and the influence exerted on its conformation by cultural diversity and social inequality in Brazil. Finally, the role of the internet in the right to communicate and on the construction of public values are examined, as digital access should be considered a fundamental human right.

Indigenous communities and the Brazilian Portuguese language: linguistic and anthropological notions

APPLICATION FORM

This course aims to present, as introductory notions, the Brazilian indigenous life with regard to linguistics and some anthropological aspects. The Portuguese language has, in its lexical structure, much influence of indigenous words, as well as African languages. We emphasize that we will sometimes focus on Brazilian indigenous populations, since in Brazil there are more than 180 languages spoken, with Mato Grosso do Sul being the second largest indigenous population. We understand that Brazilian society as well as the Brazilian Portuguese language come from an intense relationship between different languages and cultures, be they European, indigenous and of African origin. Thus, this course intends to deal with the diversity of the Portuguese spoken in the Brazilian territory, including its diverse cultural manifestations.

Agroécologie en Amazonie: vers une reconnaissance scientifique et sociale des pratiques agroécologiques des agriculteurs

Le présent cours porte sur l'applicabilité du concept d'agroécologie dans l'environnement amazonien. Partant de la présentation générale du concept d'agroécologie, nous aborderons la manière dont l'agroécologie est mise en oeuvre dans la région amazonienne, en mettant l'accent sur les pratiques des agriculteurs et sur la manière dont la recherche et les politiques publiques sont mises en oeuvre pour la reconnaissance et l'expansion de ces pratiques auprès des communautés rurales de la région. Nous concentrerons nos réflexions sur la région nord-est de l'État du Pará, qui est l'une des plus anciennes zones de colonisation en Amazonie, composée d'une mosaïque complexe de cultures qui se sont formées à la suite de différents cycles de colonisation. Cette région est caractérisée par une mosaïque complexe d'occupation des sols, composée d'un ensemble de grands et de petits producteurs ruraux aux rationalités technologiques et aux modes de production distincts (municipalités d'agriculture familiale traditionnelle, municipalités de frontière agricole consolidée liées à l'agriculture à grande échelle, etc.). Ainsi, la région constitue un espace représentatif pour le débat sur la transition agroécologique dans la région amazonienne. Le cours se déroulera sous un format hybride, comprenant des moments synchroniques et asynchrones pour la présentation et le débat des thèmes proposés à la discussion, qui seront complétés par des activités à réaliser par les participants au cours en format asynchrone.

Human impacts on Brazilian freshwater ecosystems: assessment and implications for conservation

Brazilian freshwater systems undergo massive pressure due to the expansion of agricultural and urban land use, especially in the Cerrado savanna, the Atlantic forest, and the Amazonian forest. Water quality deterioration, community structure and physiology changes, altered channel morphology, geochemistry, and hydrodynamic patterns are some of the impacts on streams and lakes inserted in intensively modified landscapes. This course will discuss the most common impacts caused by land-use practices on different types of freshwater systems in Brazil, assessed by structural and functional methods applied on different scales. The course is organized into six modules to cover assessments based on geochemistry (Module 1), geotechnology (Module 2), phytoplankton ecology (Module 3), biochemical indication (fatty acids) in seston and biofilms (Module 4), as well as ecosystem functioning (nutrient retention and ecosystem metabolism – Modules 5 and 6, respectively). The target audience is undergraduate and graduate students from environmental sciences, including biology, ecology, geosciences, hydrology, environmental and sanitation engineering, and related areas.

Biodiversity in Brazil: continental biomes

APPLICATION FORM

Brazil is the country with the highest biodiversity in the world. This course is about Brazilian continental biomes and their biodiversity. First, we will introduce the concepts of biodiversity hotspots, biomes, ecosystems, and wilderness areas. We will also review the geological history of South America and how the landscape changed through time. Then, we will explore the six continental biomes in Brazil: Amazonia, Atlantic Forest, Cerrado, Pantanal, Caatinga and Pampa. We will review and compare their main characteristics: vegetation types, climate, plants and animals, and human occupation. Finally, we will learn about the main environmental threats, conservation initiatives, and prospects for sustainable development.

From the perspective of tool to the conscience of a language: an analysis of Brazilian Education parameters related to the use of current digital technologies

 APPLICATION FORM

The main objective of this course is to open a space where global citizens could give contributions to Brazilian Education parameters. The focus in all of the 6 meetings would be the motivation for discussions about digital technology structures and devices not only as mere instruments to be applied in Education. In fact, the program would expect that the audience brings their experiences about the application of digital technology as a language, a current thought settled up by communication – and understanding – in society with its new media. In this perspective, more important than only being worldly connected, professionals in educational context would dedicate their efforts on explaining quality in human relationships they work with.

Freire's contemporary pedagogy for the 21st. century education

 APPLICATION FORM

The course focuses on the principles of the Brazilian educator and thinker Paulo Freire applied to the XXI century education and classroom. The main objective is to discuss and reflect on Freire's educational legacy, mainly his contemporary philosophy. For that, the activities proposed aim at promoting reflection and dialogue among the participants, mostly teachers, educators and teacher educators, from diverse areas of knowledge, cultural and educational contexts. The interactions will be synchronous and asynchronous, and will be based on some publications in which he revisited a few of his theoretical positionings. Participants will have the opportunity to better understand some of the main Freirean's concepts, such as palavra-mundo, banking education and pedagogical praxis, and relate them to their educational contexts.

Description Technique in Basic Portuguese - L.E.A. - of Topical, Anthropophysical, Chronophasic and Psychological Characteristics of Brazil and its People

APPLICATION FORM

According to Bechara (2019) "The meaning of words is closely related to the world of ideas and feelings; there is no absolute separation between ideas and thoughts. That is why associations are established from one to the other." Under that premise, this course aims to create favorable conditions for the learning of description techniques in Portuguese in order to develop in a basic way the skills of describing places, people, times, personalities and / or behaviors of Brazil, its regions and its people. The way to teach will be hybrid: synchronous and asynchronous, in English language.

Learning assertiveness in communication within the Brazilian setting

APPLICATION FORM

This course will tap into implications of culture for assertive communication in the Brazilian setting, with a particular focus on oral language on everyday scenarios, such as introductions, invitations, bonding and small talk. Participants will discuss and practice with their peers such cultural nuances and social skills through discussions, role-plays and short presentations.

The goal is to help them make connections between their own understanding of what it means to be assertive, general conceptions of assertiveness and their actual implications for Brazilian culture. The resources will consist mainly of live meetings.

Language policy in Brazil: relations between language and culture

APPLICATION FORM

This course is a brief introduction to language policy studies and the cultural implications of studying foreign languages. We will focus on linguistic policies for the dissemination and affirmation of the Portuguese language around the world and the relationship between culture and teaching of Portuguese as foreign/additional language. We are going to discuss some political actions of the Portugal metropolis in relation to its colonies, especially in Brazil. We will also discuss the geography of the Portuguese language, the nature of linguistic variation and its cultural relations and, finally, culture and language. We aim at introducing the students to a panorama of Portuguese linguistic colonization, particularly in Brazil; provoking a reflection on the management of plurilingualism / pluricentrism; and motivating students to reflect on the theoretical questions that emerge from the construction of linguistic and cultural identity.

Português para fins específicos: preparatório para o Celpe-Bras

APPLICATION FORM

Em 1994, o O Certificado de Proficiência em Língua Portuguesa para Estrangeiros (Celpe-Bras) foi instituído como o único exame brasileiro oficial para comprovação de proficiência em português como língua estrangeira. Desde então, vem sendo requisito para falantes de outras línguas-culturas poderem estudar e trabalhar no país. Entendendo proficiência como a capacidade de usar adequadamente a língua para desempenhar ações no mundo, o exame é composto por uma prova escrita e uma prova oral que exigem um conhecimento e uma preparação específica. Neste curso, pretendemos explicitar tais conhecimentos em língua portuguesa e preparar os/as cursistas no sentido de obterem êxito em tal certificação.

Português para falantes de espanhol: mochila nas costas, pé na estrada e comunicação essencial para viajantes

APPLICATION FORM

O presente curso de extensão visa oferecer, aos aprendizes de português como língua estrangeira, um suporte léxico básico para falantes de espanhol como língua materna. Pautando-se no enfoque comunicativo de ensino de línguas (ALMEIDA, 1993), o curso pretende abordar o português como língua adicional para além da apreensão do vocabulário, sobretudo buscando agregar uma visada sociocultural acerca do português falado no Brasil (MORAN, 2001). Para tanto, além de aprender sobre como se comunicar em contextos básicos como no aeroporto, metrô, restaurantes, centros comerciais e outros ambientes comunicativos, o aprendente será instigado a refletir sobre os aspectos culturais e comunicativos, a fim de alcançar uma interação realmente efetiva e pautada na realidade linguística que abarca o português brasileiro.

Literatura, Amazonas e as questões indígenas

APPLICATION FORM

O curso busca uma reflexão na literatura produzida no Amazonas ou que tematizam a região como espaço da obra e de que maneira o texto literário é atravessado por questões indígenas. A escritura no/do espaço da Amazônia destaca a memória do caboclo ou índio? A diáspora vivenciada no Amazonas imprime nas páginas literárias o fracasso do projeto civilizador nessa região? Essas serão questões norteadoras ao ler e analisar a literatura no Amazonas. O curso trará para o debate as obras A selva, de Ferreira de Castro; Cinzas do Norte, de Milton Hatoum; Filhos da várzea, de Anibal Beça; O crisântemo de cem pétalas, de Roberto Evangelista; A caligrafia de Deus, de Márcio de Souza, entre outros. Nessa perspectiva, serão evidenciados os atravessamentos e diálogos literários no Amazonas e questões indígenas.

Leitura de poesia brasileira

APPLICATION FORM

Trata-se de um curso de leitura orientada de poemas escritos em língua portuguesa, de autores nascidos e/ou que residiram no Brasil, planejado para não-nativos. A seleção será composta de poemas do período colonial e pós-colonial, chegando à produção contemporânea. Haverá uma valorização dos escritos produzidos e publicados fora do eixo hegemônico composto pelas metrópoles Rio de Janeiro e São Paulo, visando a apresentar aos cursistas um panorama mais diversificado da produção poética brasileira. Sem prejuízo da presença de poemas clássicos, será dado destaque intencional para a produção de mulheres, indígenas e negros (afrobrasileiros). Pretende-se apresentar aos cursistas uma antologia não comercial, com os textos selecionados; no ato de leitura partilhada de cada poema, haverá uma contextualização de elementos sócio-históricos e culturais que possam ser requeridos para a produção de sentidos no processo de leitura dos poemas. Serão indicadas, também, fontes de pesquisa e aprofundamento.

APPLICATION FORM

O objetivo deste curso é desenvolver atividades voltadas para o ensino de Português como Língua Adicional. Nosso propósito é explorar a língua portuguesa sob a perspectiva da construção e da recepção do humor em contextos específicos. O processo de ensino-aprendizagem de uma língua se torna mais significativo quando envolve as culturas tanto dos falantes da qual ela faz parte, quanto daqueles que a aprendem. O humor abrange questões culturais e linguísticas que precisam ser desvendadas e significadas para que se alcance a compreensão que produz o efeito do riso. Durante as aulas, exploraremos, de forma integrada, as habilidades de compreensão e produção de textos orais e escritos, tendo foco principal na oralidade.
